Dear Byrd:

I want to thank you again for inviting me to the first Authentic Leadership Retreat. It was an amazing experience and one that I am very thankful I was given the opportunity to participate in. This came at a crucial time in my life, and I will be forever grateful that you thought of me when putting together the list of attendees.

In my 30 plus years of business, this was by far the best session I have ever attended. I was very moved by the power of the presenters and the energy of the group, and feel that for once, I am totally motivated to make the changes necessary to allow me to be a better person in both my personal and professional lives.

In order to maintain my level of commitment and enthusiasm, I intend to stay in touch with my fellow attendees and encourage them to "stay on track" and to "let go of what's holding them back." I think we all share a lot of common traits and desires, and that the synergy of the group will keep all of us focused and encouraged as we embark on our journeys.

I plan to develop relationships with like-minded people as outlined in your presentation on the keys (3 P's) to greatness. I will associate with the "right people; those committed to a common purpose and driven by a similar passion." I am so excited about the chance to start over and know that with your help, I will exceed my expectations of significant change and personal growth.

During my drive back to the San Antonio Airport, I decided to put together a "personal Board of Directors" to assist me in my development and to keep me accountable for accomplishing my goals. I would never have considered this before attending the Authentic Leadership Retreat.

Thanks again for all of your help and most importantly for being my friend, because in the end, the only thing that really matters is relationships.

Take care and stay well,
